MR.JUSTICE M.C.PATEL

Date of decision: 21/07/98

ORAL JUDGEMENT (Per C.K.Thakkar,J.):

The following question is referred for opinion of this Court:-

"Whether the Appellate Tribunal is right in law and on facts in holding that the provisions of taxation, gratuity liabilities etc. are required to be deducted for the purpose of working out the break-up value of shares under Rule 1D of the W.T.Rules, 1957?"

Though the assessee is served nobody appears on his behalf. Mr.P.G.Desai, instructed by Mr.M.R.Bhatt, learned Counsel for the Revenue, submitted that the point raised in the reference has been concluded by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in BHARAT HARI SINGHANIA AND OTHERS v. COMMISSIONER OF WEALTH-TAX AND OTHERS, 207 ITR, 1. After considering the relevant provisions of the Wealth Tax Act, 1957 and Wealth Tax Rules,1957, the Hon'ble Supreme Court observed as under:-

"Explanation II in rule 1D contains two clauses.

Clause (i) provides that two items shown as assets in the balance-sheet shall not be treated as assets for the purpose of rule 1D. Similarly, clause (ii) says that six items shown as liabilities in the balance-sheet shall not be treated as liabilities for the purpose of rule 1D. In other words, the balance-sheet of the company with the aforesaid modifications shall be the basis for working the rule. Schedule VI to the Companies Act, as already stated, prescribes the form in which the balance-sheet of a company has to be prepared. Of the four columns provided therein, columns (2) and (3) relate to liabilities and assets. The advance tax paid under section 210 of the Income-tax Act, though already paid, is shown as an asset as required by Schedule VI. Clause (i)(a) of Explanation II, however, says that it shall not be treated as an asset. To this extent, it is in favour of the assessee because the assets as shown in the balance-sheet will stand reduced to that extent. Now, clause (ii)(e) says that in case the balance-sheet specifies any amount as "provision for taxation" in the column of liabilities, the Wealth-tax Officer shall treat only that amount as a liability which is equal to the tax payable with reference to the book profits. Any excess over the said amount shall not be treated as a liability. Sub-clause (e) of clause (ii) while referring to the "amount representing provision for taxation" qualifies the said words by the words following, viz. "other than the amount referred to in clause (i)(a)". This is as it ought to be. The amount referred to in clause (i)(a) is shown in the balance sheet as an asset whereas clause (ii)(e) speaks of an amount shown as a liability in the balance-sheet. Now no company would show the amount of advance tax paid, which is shown as an asset in the column relating to assets, simultaneously as a liability in the column of liabilities. The same amount cannot be shown both as an asset as well as a liability. No auditor would be a party to the preparation of such a balance-sheet. Ordinarily, therefore, there will be no occasion for the Wealth-tax Officer to rely upon the said words "other than the amount referred to in clause (i)(a)". However, if in the case of the balance-sheet of any company, the said amount of advance tax paid is also shown as a liability, i.e. if the said amount is included in the amount set apart as provision towards taxation, it would obviously have to be deleted from the column of liabilities-and this is also what the aforesaid words in clause (ii)(e) say. Clause (ii)(e) is in sense complementary to clause (i)(a). Truly speaking, the advance tax paid is not really an asset but the proforma of balance-sheet in Schedule VI to the Companies Act requires it to be shown as such. What clause (i)(a) does is to remove the said amount from the list of assets for the purpose of rule ID. It is then that clause (ii)(e), which speaks of liabilities, says that only that amount which is still remaining to be paid shall be treated as a liability on the valuation date. If in the provision for taxation made in the column of liabilities in the balance-sheet, the amount of advance tax already paid is again shown as a liability, it will not be treated as a liability. It must be remembered that the advance tax has already gone out of the profits and been debited in the account books of the company. This is the true function of both the sub-clauses. The situation is best explained by giving an illustration. Take a case where a company has paid Rs.8 lakhs by way of advance tax which is shown as an asset in the balance-sheet. The company has made a provision of Rs.15 lakhs for taxation which is shown as a liability in the balance-sheet. The Wealth-tax Officer estimates the tax payable on the basis of book profits at Rs.10 lakhs. What he is asked to do by clause (ii)(e) is not to treat the excess Rs.5 lakhs as a liability. The tax liability as arrived at by him is only Rs.10 lakhs, but inasmuch as Rs.8 lakhs has already been paid and only Rs.2 lakhs remains payable, the said Rs.2 lakhs alone will be treated as a liability on the valuation date. It must be remembered that Rs.8 lakhs already paid is deleted from the "assets" shown in the balance-sheet. What is shown as an asset cannot at the same time be shown as a liability. This does not mean that tax liability is treated by the Wealth-tax Officer only as Rs.2 lakhs. It is Rs.10 lakhs. Rs.8 lakhs has already gone out of the profits and debited in the books of the company. By reading clause (i)(a) and clause (ii)(e) together, the assessee will be getting the benefit of entire Rs.10 lakhs but so far as the balance-sheet for the purpose of rule 1D is concerned, only Rs.2 lakhs will be treated as a liability on the valuation date since that is the actual amount still outstanding. We do not think that if the aforesaid clauses are understood as explained herein, there is any prejudice to the assessees or to the Revenue. It indeed reflects the true situation. It is brought to our notice that the Andhra Pradesh High Court has taken a similar view in CIT v. M.Lakshmaiah (1988) 174 ITR 4 and that a similar view has also been taken by the Karnataka High Court in CWT v. N. Krishnan (1986) 162 ITR 309, and the Punjab and Haryana High Court in Ashok Kumar Oswal (Minor) v. CWT (1984) 148 ITR 620. On the other hand, the Gujarat High Court in CWT v. Ashok K.Parikh (1981) 129 ITR 46 has taken a different view which has been adopted by some other High Courts. It is enough to indicate that if the said sub-clauses are understood in the manner indicated and clarified by us, counsel for the assessees agree that they have no grievance. In this view of the matter, we do not think it necessary to deal with the opposing views of the High Courts at any length."

After referring to various decisions, the Hon'ble Supreme Court summarised certain conclusions. Conclusion No.(2) reads as under:-

- "(2) While valuing the unquoted equity shares under rule 1D, no deductions on account of capital gains tax which would have been payable in case the said shares were sold on the valuation date can be made. Similarly, no other deductions including provisions for taxation, provident fund and gratuity are admissible. Rule ID is exhaustive on the subject."

In our opinion, the submission of the revenue that the question referred is concluded by the above decision is well-founded and must be accepted.

In our opinion, the question referred in the present reference is covered by the said conclusion and has to be answered in the negative.

In the result, the question referred to us must be answered in the negative, i.e. in favour of the revenue and against the assessee. Reference is accordingly answered. In the facts and circumstances, there shall be no order as to costs.
